Home Security TV is a light with a timer, simulating scene and color changes, fading, and on-screen motion. Home Security TV makes light the same as the light from an HD television. It is constantly changing and gives the impression of "alive." Home Security TV makes it look like someone is watching TV.

So buy a Home Security TV and reduce your chance of becoming the next burglary victim.

Burglars always circle a house before entering. Few burglars will enter a home that they think someone is home.

You reduce your odds of a break-in. Thieves have enough time to do their damage before the police arrive. Burglars can cause you much misery in a "smash and grab" robbery. But they are much less likely to attempt such a robbery if they think someone is home. Home Security TV gives just that impression.

Neither Home Security TV nor any home security system can guarantee you will not have a break-in. You should never slack off your security precautions. You still need good locks. But, you can make your home look occupied, and thus improve your odds, for a remarkably modest price, and with no hassle at all.
